Pam,

Andrea helped me open the document in MS Word. The second one is the only one I care about. I suggest we keep the original language, so we don't get in a *issing match. They either want the $80,000 or not. If they had been more organized about invoices submitted in the last contract, this language would not have been necessary. We don't preclude them from re-invoicing with proper documentation, so we don't need the new language. Ultimately, it is a management "judgement call" on what is worth arguing over.

Now you know what I think.

Mike
